

It all sounds so simple in theory...You call your puppy and they come to your feet, then you reward them and that should be it. The Recall!

For so many people though, it all goes pear-shaped and we end up chasing our dogs and puppies all over the park, shouting their name as they run away from us. Sometimes it seems like the only way to get your dog to come running is to get in the car and start the engine or wait until they finally get tired and want to go home.

Yet it's so easy to train a dog to come when called every time. Anyone can do it. Like anything though, you need to know the secrets to success...

You see the reason that it goes wrong is that there are some very simple and logical steps that have to be followed when training your puppy to come, or it can all turn to custard very quickly.

So here is one of the most important steps.

Do not chase your puppy!

That's right. The last thing you do is chase your puppy if they do not come.

Sounds simple but so many people do it. It goes something like this. You call your puppy and they run the other way so you move closer to them calling their name.

And that's the big mistake ! You are now chasing your puppy. Yep it happens that quickly.

One minute you were training your puppy to come to you and the next minute you were chasing them.

So what are your options. Well the first to consider is keeping your puppy on a long line until you are sure that they will come. That's it... pretty simple, right? If they are not going to come when you call them, then maybe you should not let them off.

And the second option is understanding how to turn, walk away from your puppy and call them so that they then chase you!

This is perfectly demonstrated by Doggy Dan in the following video during a puppy class at the park.

Getting your puppy to chase you is so easy when you know how... as you can see in the video it really works. No chasing, no screaming and the puppies come running.

Train Your Puppy to Come at the Park

Unfortunately very few people are shown these steps at puppy class. However Doggy Dan's website shows you everything you could want to know about raising the perfect dog. In fact he has a video diary of his 1 year old dog Moses from 8 weeks of age showing you exactly how to train him. And whats more, Dan gives you a $1 trial of the site for 3 days!

Raising a puppy does not need to be difficult when you have the right advice. If you are looking for help to training your puppy or stopping unwanted dog behaviors then my recommendation is this...

Don't waste any more time or money on other trainers or books. Get real value for money and find a dog training method that works.
